CHARLES V. O'BOYLE, JR. Biographical Summary

Chuck O'Boyle specializes in recruiting new leadership for colleges, universities, independent schools and other educational institutions. He began his executive search career in 1999 in the Atlanta office of Spencer Stuart, working in the firm's financial services, chief financial officer and not-for-profit practices. In 2002, he became one of three consultants at Jon McRae & Associates, a pioneer in academic search that had specialized in presidential recruiting for private colleges and universities since 1968. He launched C. V. O'Boyle, Jr., LLC as an independent search practice in Atlanta in 2005, with Carleton College as the firm's first client. He relocated to Providence, Rhode Island in March 2012 following his husband Richard Rambuss's appointment as professor of English at Brown University.

Previously, he practiced law at Lord Day & Lord, Barrett Smith in New York. He also worked in the legal operation of GE Capital's Global Project & Structured Finance group in Stamford, Connecticut, and for a predecessor of McGuire Woods LLP in Atlanta.

A native of Plainfield, New Jersey, he grew up in Hollis, New Hampshire. He graduated from Lawrence Academy in Groton, Massachusetts in 1982 and earned an AB in history from Amherst College, cum laude, in 1986. After two years of service as Director of Operations for the Chi Psi Educational Trust, he earned a JD from the University of Michigan Law School in 1991. He is admitted to the New York bar. He currently serves as a site visitor for the American Bar Association's Section on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar and as a director of the College Hill Neighborhood Association.

He has conducted searches for presidents; provosts and other chief academic officers; deans of business, career services, education, enrollment management, law, nursing and professional studies; library and museum directors, association executives and chief advancement, diversity, financial, information and student-affairs officers.
